A Journey Through Time

Step back in time with Gladys Muir's captivating autobiography, "Growing Up in Calgary: Life As It Was." This enchanting memoir transports you to the vibrant city of Calgary during the tumultuous decades of the 1920s and 1930s. Through Gladys's vivid recollections, you'll witness the city's transformation from a frontier town into a thriving metropolis.

The Heart of a City

Gladys's story is not merely a personal account; it is a chronicle of Calgary itself. She paints a vivid picture of the bustling downtown, where the iconic Hudson's Bay department store anchored the city's retail hub. She describes the lively neighborhoods, where children played street hockey and neighbors gathered for community events.

Through a Child's Eyes

As a young girl growing up in Calgary, Gladys experienced the city's evolution firsthand. She recalls the excitement of the city's first electric streetcars, the construction of the majestic Calgary Tower, and the arrival of the first automobiles. Her keen observations and charming anecdotes bring to life the daily rhythms of this vibrant community.

A Tapestry of Characters

"Growing Up in Calgary" is not just a historical account; it is also a celebration of the people who shaped the city. Gladys introduces us to a colorful cast of characters, including her spirited family, dedicated teachers, and the many friends she met along the way. Through their stories, we gain a deep appreciation for the spirit and determination that defined Calgary's early residents.

Echoes of the Past

As you delve into Gladys's memoir, you'll not only learn about Calgary's past but also gain a fresh perspective on the present. Her descriptions of the city's landmarks, neighborhoods, and events will resonate with anyone who has ever called Calgary home. This book is a precious reminder of the city's rich heritage and a testament to the enduring power of human memory.
