In this engrossing memoir, Holly Marie Combs, who played Holly Marshall on the beloved 1970s TV show 'Land of the Lost,' shares her unique experiences from the set and beyond. From her early days as a child actress to her lifelong friendship with co-star Kathy Coleman, Combs offers a fascinating glimpse into the world of this iconic show.

Behind-the-Scenes Stories

Combs provides a wealth of behind-the-scenes stories from the set of 'Land of the Lost.' She recounts the challenges of filming in the California desert, the camaraderie among the cast and crew, and the hilarious mishaps that occurred along the way. Readers will be entertained by her anecdotes about working with the show's iconic Sleestak monsters and the difficulties of performing stunts in the unforgiving heat.

A Lifelong Friendship

One of the most touching aspects of Combs' memoir is her account of her lifelong friendship with Kathy Coleman, who played her sister Lucy on 'Land of the Lost.' The two actresses met as children on the set of the show and have remained close ever since. Combs shares heartwarming stories about their adventures together, both on and off the screen.
