

Soaring Earth: A Companion Memoir to Enchanted Air

Soaring Earth is a companion memoir to Enchanted Air, a finalist for the Pulitzer Prize. It is a lyrical and moving account of a young woman's journey to find her place in the world.

The memoir begins with the author's childhood in rural New Hampshire. She describes her early love of nature and her desire to become a writer. However, she also struggles with feelings of isolation and inadequacy.

After graduating from college, the author moves to New York City to pursue her writing career. She finds success as a journalist, but she still feels unfulfilled. She longs for a deeper connection to the world around her.

One day, the author meets a group of environmental activists who are fighting to protect the land she grew up on. She joins their cause and finds a renewed sense of purpose. Through her work with the activists, she learns about the importance of community and the power of collective action.

Soaring Earth is a beautifully written and inspiring memoir. It is a story about finding your place in the world, following your dreams, and making a difference.
